Joaquin Ibarra

*"Three printers in eighteenth-century Spain are commonly regarded as the leaders of the revival in printing standards in that country. Of the three, Joaquin Ibarra, Benito Monfort, and Antonio de Sancha, it is Ibarra who is generally considered to be pre-eminent." The productions of Ibarra's press "show a conscious effort to restore to Spanish printing the high standards of a previous age. In this, Ibarra was so successful that he is justly ranked alongside Baskerville, Didot, and Bodoni as one of the outstanding printers of the eighteenth century."—H.G. Whitehead, "Joaquim Ibarra, 1725-1785: a Tentative List of Holdings in the Reference Division of the British Library" in The British Library Journal, VI, 2 (Autumn 1980), p. 199.*

Braulio Elías Joaquín Benito Ibarra y Marín, a native of Saragossa, was the younger brother of Manuel Ibarra, who, after working as a compositor in the Madrid printing office of his uncle, Antonio Marín, was nominated printer to the University of Cervera in 1735. Joaquin went with him as an apprentice and remained in the University town for seven years. Joaquin possibly worked for his uncle Marín from 1742 to 1753.

King Carlos III played an important part in the revival of printing. Various laws favored printers, the most important was the setting up of the Real Compañía de Impresores y Libreros del Reino (Real Cédula of 24 July, 1763), of which company Ibarra was a founding member. The Ibarra press issued some 2,500 titles between 1753 and 1785. The ink he used had exceptional quality and brilliance, based on a secret formula he invented, while the use of high quality paper was an important element of Ibarra's press, which was true also of the presses of Sancha and Monfort. Ibarra's press continued under his widow, sons, and grandson until 1836. We have included two examples with the "Viuva Ibarra" imprint, as well as another from "Imprenta de Ibarra" which continued to exhibit the high quality of the founder.

Eighteen engraved plates (one folding). Occasional foxing, mostly very light, a few leaves with soiling and minor stains. Very small repairs at lower blank margin of title page and following leaf. On the whole in good, perhaps slightly better than good, sound condition. Bookplate of Luis Bardon. Armorial Bookplate of Clado Ribeiro de Lessa. (2 ll.), 160 pp., 18 engraved plates. $1,200.00

FIRST EDITION. Paleografía española opens with a brief history of the languages spoken and written in Spain before the Roman occupation, then Latin, and then Castilian Spanish, focusing on orthographic changes that occurred under Moorish domination.

Subsequent chapters are organized in reverse chronological order, mostly by century; each is accompanied by plates that contain numerous examples of the different scripts. For example, the plate for the fifteenth century illustrates a letter written in letra cortesana by the Catholic Queen D. Isabel to D. Gomez Manrique, Corregidor de Toledo; a transcription is given on pp. 36-37. In the chapter on the thirteenth century, Plate 8 illustrates the beginning of the prologue to the Cantigas de Santa Maria by D. Alfonso X el Sabio, including music written in neume notation (transcription pp. 71-73). The chapter on the twelfth and thirteenth centuries illustrates letra Galicana or letra Francesa, which Terreros y Pando describes as a “universal” script of this time period (p. 103 and Plate 13). He notes that letra Longobardica or Lombarda was used frequently in Italy, and that gothic script was incorrectly believed to be the same as Longobardicos (p. 104). This argument is supported with examples of papal bulls by Pope Urban II, written in Letra Francesa and Lombarda (p. 104).

The final section of the work (pp. 142-158) is on the writing of the Arab and Jewish peoples in Spain. Plate 18 illustrates examples of thirteenth-century Arabic writing, with transcription and Spanish translation. Styles include caracteres Asiaticos and caracteres Cuphicos (or Africanos), which are frequently found in Spain, at buildings such as the older sections of the Patio Principal del Colegio, antes Casa Profesa, de la Compañía de Jesús de Toledo. The Hebrew writing is limited to two examples on Plate 18 (see also pp. 155-6)—Rabbinical cursive and cuadrado—which can be found inscribed on buildings such as the Synagogue of Toledo.

3. [RODRIGUEZ CAMPOMANES Y SORRIBA, Pedro, later Conde de Campomanes]. Noticia Geografica del Reyno, y Caminos de Portugal. Madrid: En la Oficina de Joachin Ibarra, 1762. 8°, full mottled sheep, smooth spine richly gilt with crimson morocco lettering piece (minor wear), gilt short title, marbled endleaves, text block edges rouged. Double-ruled border on every page. Typographical vignette on title page. Scattered very light foxing. Overall in very good condition. Early inscriptions on front flyleaf: "Del uso de Fr. Ferndo. Lopez" and "Librería de PPs. Franc. Cal. de Logroño." (10 ll.), 226 pp., (1 integral blank l.). $1,800.00

FIRST EDITION; a second was printed by Ibarra's daughter in 1808. The Prologo (7 ll.) offers a short history of Portugal, notes on its geography, and a brief discussion of available maps. Each of the six chapters includes an introduction on the history of the region and its major points of interest, followed by distances between towns. They are Entre Minho e Douro, Tras-os-montes, Beira, Estremadura, Alentejo, and Algarve. The section's title is printed vertically outside the double borders of the page. Information is also given for Spanish cities and towns near the frontier with Portugal. One of the intended uses for this book was to aid in sending correspondence and perhaps shipments of goods by post.

The work is dedicated to Ricardo Wall (Richard Wall, 1694-1777), son of Irish Jacobite refugees living in Nantes, who entered Spanish naval service in 1716 and rose to the rank of field marshal by 1744. After being wounded he turned to a diplomatic career, serving as ambassador to the Court of St. James and then foreign minister under Fernando VI and Carlos III.

Pedro Rodríguez Campomanes (1723-1803), Conde de Campomanes, “probably influenced Spanish economic thought of his time more than any other writer” (La Force, p. 156). There is little information concerning his biography. Even though one branch of his family were hidalgos, they were not wealthy. He rose by force of his brilliance, revealed at an early age, and staunch character. The author’s contemporary Sempere y Guarinos praised the Discurso acerca do modo de fomentar a industria do povo highly: “Apenas se encontrará obra alguna, que en tan corto volumen comprenda tanto numero de principios y máximas, las mas importantes para el adelantamiento de la industria nacional, y de la felicidad pública” (II, 80). Campomanes advocated household industry—mainly textiles—so that people would not have to move from small towns and farms. In order to spread the knowledge that would make such industry possible, he strongly advocated the formation of local economic societies. When the Discurso was first printed in Madrid, 1774, the King ordered copies sent to all local governing officials and bodies of Spain, and to bishops for distribution among the clergy.

The Conde de Campomanes was a leading minister of D. Carlos III; hence his economic philosophy, of the liberal, mercantilist school, had an enormous impact on Spain’s economy. Among his reforms were free trade with America, tax exemptions for many raw materials, duties on more imports, and the creation of a national bank. Campomanes also wrote on a wide range of political, legal and historical matters. His achievements were widely recognized abroad: for instance, Benjamin Franklin welcomed him as a member of the American Philosophical Society merely on the basis of what had been printed about him in newspapers. He was created Conde de Campomanes in 1780.

*Spanish Crown Seeks to Extend Its Authority
Over the Church's Temporal Affairs,

[RODRIGUEZ CAMPOMANES Y SORRIBA, Pedro, later Conde de Campomanes]. Juicio imparcial sobre las letras, en forma de breve, que ha publicado la Curia Romana, e que se intentan derogar ciertos edictos del Serenísimo Señor Infante Duque de Parma y disputarle la soberanía con este pretexto. Madrid: En la Oficina de D. Joachin de Ibarra, 1769. Folio (30 x 21.2 cm.), recent period calf, spine gilt with crimson morocco label, edges sprinkled dark green, marbled endpapers. Second, revised edition of this important salvo in the battle between the Bourbon kings and the Holy See, and a fine example of Ibarra printing. The first edition was printed by Ibarra in 1768.

Since the time of Ferdinand and Isabella, Spanish kings had exercised considerable control over the temporal affairs of the Catholic Church within Spain and the Americas. Royal prerogatives had been spelled out in various written agreements, culminating in the Corcordat of 1753, in which the Spanish crown gained the rights to make appointments to church offices and to tax church lands. These privileges were bitterly disputed by the Jesuits. Encouraged by the Marques de Pombal's expulsion of the Jesuits from Portugal in 1758, the Bourbon kings proceeded to strengthen their position vis-à-vis the church by expelling the Jesuits in turn from France, the Two Sicilies and Parma.

The clash of papal and royal wills proved particularly bitter in Parma, ruled since 1765 by Ferdinand, son of D. Felipe, infante of Spain. In a series of edicts, Ferdinand asserted firm control over the church's temporal affairs and restricted the liberties and privileges of the clergy. Pope Clement XIII challenged the edicts in the Litterae in forma brevis quibus abrogantur nonnulla edicta in ducata parmensi ... (Rome, 1768). The other Bourbon kings rallied behind Ferdinand's position and, in January 1769, demanded the immediate suppression of the Jesuit order. Their actions provoked a grave diplomatic crisis, which was not resolved until Clement XIV dissolved the order in 1773.

The Juicio imparcial is the Spanish crown's reply to the Litterae, a detailed defense not only of the edicts of Parma but also of its own authority over the church's temporal affairs. The Spanish position is buttressed by frequent references to canon law and by a lengthy appendix reprinting relevant documents dating back to the sixteenth century. The first edition of the Juicio imparcial, also printed by Ibarra, appeared late in 1768 but was withdrawn early in 1769 when this second, revised edition was printed.

Although unsigned, the Juicio imparcial was written by Pedro Rodriguez Campomanes (1723-1803), a leading minister of D. Carlos III. Campomanes, who "probably influenced Spanish economic thought of his time more than any other writer" (La Force, p. 156), published the important Discurso sobre el fomento de la industria popular (Madrid, 1774). His economic philosophy, of the liberal, mercantilist school, had an enormous impact on Spain's economy. Among his reforms were free trade with America, tax exemptions for many raw materials, duties on more imports, and the creation of a national bank. He also wrote on a wide range of political, legal and historical matters. He was created Conde de Campomanes in 1780.

FIRST and ONLY EDITION. Bound with Apendice de los Documentos, Madrid: Por D. Joachin Ibarra, Impresor de Sámara de S.M., 1781. The Voto de Santiago was offered by the kingdoms of Asturias, Galicia, León and Castilla to the cathedral at Santiago de Compostella in thanks for St. James's intervention against the Moors at the (legendary) Battle of Clavijo, in 842. St. James was given a portion of the year's first fruits and crops, which was paid for by a special tax. Philip IV of Spain renewed and formalized the vow in 1643. It was abolished in 1808 by the Bayonne Statute.

Antonio Ponce de León y Spínola, 11th Duke of Arcos, (1726-1780) was a Spanish peer and army officer. The last male representative of the House of Ponce de León, he was known for his extensive wealth. For a period of time, he was the sole largest employer in Western Europe, having over 3,000 servants. Among his other titles were 18th Duke of Nájera, 14th Duke of Maqueda, 15th Marquess of Elche, 15th Marquess of Zahara, 11th Count of Casares and 13th Count of Bailén. After serving as an army officer in Italy, he returned to Spain in 1752 and was appointed supernumerary captain of the Spanish Royal Company of Corps Guards. In 1764 Charles III awarded him the Order of the Golden Fleece. In 1772 he was appointed Captain General of the Royal Spanish Armies, despite

First Edition in Spanish, nicely printed on excellent paper. The Archbishop of Leon, primate of France, defends Christianity against the incredulidad of modern writers (i.e., Enlightenment thinkers). Includes several chapters on Jews and Judaism (pp. 124-37).

Antoine de Montazet (1713 -1788) was a French theologian, of Jansenist tendencies, who became Bishop of Autun and Archbishop of Lyon. He was elected to the Académie française in 1756, but did not produce significant literary works. Montazet was born in Laugnac. He had published for his seminary by the Oratorian Joseph Valla, six volumes of Institutiones theologicæ. These were known as "Théologie de Lyon", and were spread throughout Italy by Scipio de' Ricci, Bishop of Pistoia and Prato, until condemned by the Index in 1792. Contrary to the papal bull of Pope Pius V on the Roman Breviary, Montazet changed the text of the Breviary and the Missal. The later efforts of Pope Pius IX and Cardinal Bonald to suppress the innovations of Montazet provoked resistance on the part of the canons, who defended the traditional Lyonnese ceremonies.

Although it appears to lack an initial blank leaf a1, the collation given by Ruiz Lasala agrees with that of the present copy. Leaf a1 was blank and canceled, in all probability.

FIRST EDITION of a work in verse that earned a prize from the Real Academia Española in 1782. Forner y Sagarra (1756-1797), a satirist and literary critic, was notorious for such works as El asno erudito, in which he attacked Iriarte's insensitive ear and pedestrian imagination. His satires became so harsh that three years after the Sátira appeared he was forbidden to publish any more works in the genre. Ward notes: "Forner concludes that the Spanish language is not actually dead, but merely swooning from a loss of blood" (Oxford Companion to Spanish Literature p. 216).

First edition in Spanish of Riflessioni imparziali sopra l'umanità degli Spagnuoli nell' Indie (Venice, 1780). It was written to counter the allegations of Spanish mistreatment of the Indians that had been published in Robertson's History of America, London 1777, and Raynal's Histoire philosophique et politique, Amsterdam 1770.

Nuix deals first with the question of whether the Indian population is declining, covering such issues as the reliability of Bartolomé de las Casas' works, the Indians' lack of skill at agriculture, the effects of disease, and “Los extrangeros que impidieron la comunicacion de la Metr poli con las Colonias.” He is particularly vehement about the detrimental effects of mining on the population and the economy (pp. 44-76, with mentions of Peru and Mexico).

Next there is a section on how the Spanish acquired land from the Indians and whether their conquests were morally acceptable. Pages 202-14 deal with the Inquisition. Nuix compares the behavior of the Spanish with that of other European conquerors, insisting that any atrocities in the Spanish colonies were committed by individuals who were later reprimanded by the Spanish government. He concludes by arguing that any harm done to the Indians was more than compensated for by the introduction of Christianity among them.

This first translation from Italian to Spanish was the work of Pedro Varela y Ulloa, a member of the Royal Council. It includes a preface by the translator in which he argues that the Spanish form of colonialism was unique: that the crimes being attributed to Spain were in fact the work of private individuals, and were minor compared to those of other European nations. This dovetails nicely with Nuix’s contention in the main text.

Nuix y Perpi na (Tora, Old Castile, 1740-Italy, 1783) became a Jesuit in 1754. By 1767 he was teaching rhetoric at Vich. One of the arguments Nuix uses to bolster his credibility in discussing the Spaniards is that he was a Catalan, and the Catalans did not participate in the colonization of the Indies. After the Jesuits were expelled from Spain, Nuix spent the rest of his life in Italy. A second translation of this work, with additions, was made by the author’s brother, Jos f de Nuix y Perpi n , and published in Cervera in 1783.

In very good condition. Small stamp at top of title page of W.B. Rochester. 126 pp. (1 blank l). $2,600.00

FIRST and ONLY EDITION. The board of governors and stockholders of the bank (listed on pp. 3-21) discuss how the Peninsular War affected the operations of the Banco Nacional de San Carlos, and how to get the bank back on a normal footing. By the time the Peninsular War ended in 1814, the Banco Nacional de San Carlos (established in 1782 by D. Carlos III) was owed 300 million reales by the government. It managed to weather this crisis and was later renamed the Banco Español de San Fernando. After a few more transformations, in the mid-nineteenth century it became the Banco de España.

Provenance: W.B. Rochester was probably William Beatty Rochester (Hagerstown, Maryland, 1789-lost in the wreck of the steamer Pulaski off the coast of North Carolina June 14, 1838), whose career dealt with monetary policy and the mint. Aide-de-camp to General McClure in the War of 1812, he served in the U.S. House of Representatives from 1821 to 1823, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor of New York in 1826, was secretary to special Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, Colombia, in 1826; Chargé d'Affaires to Central America in 1827; settled in Buffalo, New York in 1828; was president of the branch bank of the United States at Buffalo, New York; president of the Bank of Pensacola, Florida. Director of the Alabama & Florida Railroad in 1837 and 1838.

Antonio de Sancha

*"The remarkable improvement in printing standards in eighteenth-century Spain is generally considered to have been due to the work of Joaquín Ibarra. However, an almost equal place must be accorded to his contemporary Antonio de Sancha, whose printing skills came to rival Ibarra's, and whose literary formation and enthusiasms possibly outstripped those of the later."—H.G. Whitehead, "Antonio de Sancha, 1720-1790: a Tentative List of Holdings in the Reference Division of the British Library" in The British Library Journal, IX, 2 (Autumn 1983), p. 140.*

Of peasant origins in the province of Guadalajara, Sancha opened a bookshop in 1768 in Madrid on the Calle de la Paz, the same street on which his brother-in-law, Antonio Sanz had had a printing office. He had been working as a bookbinder early on; in 1757 he was named binder to the Real Academia de la Historia, while not long after he obtained the patronage of the Biblioteca Real and Real Academia Española. In 1771 he bought the Ramirez printing shop on the Calle de Barrionuevo from the heirs of Gabriel Ramirez, a leading printer of mid-century, while in 1773 he set up as a printer in the Aduana Vieja, on the Plaza de la Leña, where he stayed until the end of his life—this site remained a printing establishment well into the nineteenth century. Rodrigues-Moñino lists 570 volumes printed by Sancha from 1771 to 1790. Sancha's sons continued to print, and we have included two books printed after his death, which display some of the same care in the use of types and paper.

Fine allegorical engraving on title page of Athena. Engraved plate showing family tree of Roman rulers from Julius Caesar to Nero (facing p. 28). Engraved vignette of a medal on p. 384 (see below). Woodcut headpieces, tailpieces, and initials. Overall in very good condition; internally fine. (20 ll.), 440 pp., 1 engraved plate. $600.00

Seventh edition, finely printed by Sancha, of an enormously popular textbook on secular and ecclesiastical history. It went through many editions after its first appearance in 1743; the latest we have seen is 1854. This is Florez's first historical work. It preceded by several years Art de verifier les dates, a very similar work in French.

After a historical overview of eras, the work consists of century-by-century lists of important events and figures (saints, popes, rulers, writers, heretics, etc.). The introductory leaves include a substantial essay on Lucifer, Bishop of Cagliari (Sardinia, d. 370 or 371), who was known for his vehement opposition to Arianism and remains a controversial figure within the Catholic Church. The focus of the Clave is on Europe, although there are scattered references to America, Brazil, Cuba, and the Indies, e.g., pp. 310-16.

The engraved vignette on the title page shows Minerva with helmet and aegis, holding a spear, seated in an arched bower. Facing p. 28 is an engraving showing the descent of the Julio-Claudians ("Genealogia de los Cesares"), with the names set in wreaths (for emperors), flowers, or leaves. On p. 384, an engraving (5 x 9 cm.) shows a medal struck in 1739 to commemorate the British victory at Porto Bello, Panama, over the Spanish during the War of the Austrian Succession (or the War of Jenkins' Ear).

Henrique Florez de Setién y Huidobro (Valladolid, 1701-Madrid, 1773) became an Augustinian at age 15 and taught theology at the University of Alcalá. Following the Clave historial, Florez began publication of España Sagrada, teatro geografico-historico de la Iglesia de España, a compilation of Spanish ecclesiastical history that was particularly valuable because it included transcriptions of many chronicles not easily available elsewhere. Florez published 29 volumes during his lifetime; it was later completed in 51 volumes, at the expense of the Spanish government.

First Edition of a Crucial Work Proposing Reforms of the Spanish Economy

15. [RODRIGUEZ CAMPOMANES Y SORRIBA, Pedro, later Conde de Campomanes]. Discurso sobre el fomento de la industria popular. Madrid: En la Imprenta de D. Antonio de Sancha, 1774. 8°, contemporary stiff vellum, ties (one defective), vertical manuscript short title on spine. Small typographical vignette on title page. In good to very good condition. Ink inscriptions on verso of rear free endleaf [in a late-eighteenth- or early-nineteenth-century hand]: “Este libro es de Josef // Santos Gonzalez” // [and in a slightly later hand]: “y despues de Ex. Antonio // Andres de Sahagun”. Mid-nineteenth-century inscription in Portuguese on front pastedown endleaf. Oval stamp of Quinta das Lagrimas, Coimbra on title-page and on p. xvii. (4 ll.), cxcviii pp. $600.00

FIRST EDITION of this work by the Conde de Campomanes, who “probably influenced Spanish economic thought of his time more than any other writer” (La Force p. 156). The author’s contemporary Sempere y Guarinos praised the Discurso highly: “Apenas se encontrará obra alguna, que en tan corto volumen comprenda tanto numero de principios y máximas, las mas importantes para el adelantamiento de la industria nacional, y de la felicidad pública” (II, 80). Campomanes advocates household industry—mainly textiles—rather than large-scale industry, so that people will not have to move from small towns and farms. In order to spread the knowledge that would make such industry possible, he strongly advocates the formation of local economic societies. Campomanes analyzes the natural resources, existing industry, and available manpower of each Spanish province (section X); he also makes sociological observations on what Spaniards consume and why. When the Discurso appeared, the King ordered copies sent to all local governing officials and bodies of Spain and to bishops for distribution among the clergy. The work was supplemented in 1775 by Discurso sobre la educacion popular de los artesanos y su fomento.

Carpenter, in discussing why this work did not qualify for the Baker Library’s exhibition of economic bestsellers printed before 1850, speculates: “He was translated into Dutch, German, Italian and Portuguese, and ordinarily, such widespread translating indicates a considerable number of editions in the original. Yet, in this case there appears to have been only one. Perhaps, as a major figure in the government of Charles III, his prominence led to very large initial edition” (Economic Bestsellers Before 1850, p. 2). In Additions and Corrections Carpenter notes that according to António Conca, the translator of the 1787 Italian edition (pp. ii-iii), there were two Spanish editions dated 1774. The first consisted of 5,000 copies; the second, of 40,000 copies, which the government distributed to parishes throughout the country. Moreover, Carpenter compared the two editions at Hitotsubashi University, Tokyo, finding them to be from different settings of type, but with the same pagination and text on the title-page, distinguishable as follows: in the true first edition on p. iv the last line begins “nado” not “disciplinado”; while on

p. cxviii the first line begins "dad económica" instead of "cada provincia". The present copy contains both "points" of the original edition.

Because Campomanes (1723-1803) was a leading minister of D. Carlos III, his economic philosophy, of the liberal, mercantilist school, had an enormous impact on Spain's economy. Among his reforms were free trade with America, tax exemptions for many raw materials, duties on more imports, and the creation of a national bank. Campomanes' achievements were widely recognized abroad: for instance, Benjamin Franklin welcomed him as a member of the American Philosophical Society merely on the basis of what had been printed about him in the newspapers. Campomanes also wrote on a wide range of political, legal, and historical matters. He was created Conde de Campomanes in 1780.

Provenance: The Quinta das Lagrimas library was one of the greatest formed in Portugal during the nineteenth century. The palace at Quinta das Lagrimas was built by the Osório Cabral de Castro family in the eighteenth century, and rebuilt after a major fire in the late nineteenth century by Miguel Osório Cabral de Castro. The collection was dispersed in various private sales during the second half of the twentieth century.

identified as Juan Andrés Hurtado de Mendoza and Amarilis as Maria de Cárdenas, daughter of the Duque de Maqueda.

Suarez de Figueroa (1571?-1644), was considered to be a bitter, jealous, and unpleasant character, hostile to the more successful writers of the day. At about age 17 he traveled to Italy, where he became a lawyer and translated Guarini's pastoral novel Il pastore Fido into Spanish (Naples 1602). In 1623 he returned to Italy with the Duque de Alba, remaining the rest of his life. In addition to La constante Amarilis, he wrote España defendia (1612), an epic poem of 1400 octaves on Bernardo del Carpio, Plaza universal de todas ciencias y artes (1615), in large part translated from Tommaso Garzoni's La piazza universale di tutte le professioni del mondo (Venice 1610), El pasajero: advertencia utilísimas a la vida humana (1617), a valuable record of society at the time, and Varias noticias importantes a la humana comunicación (1621), a series of twenty essays on various subjects.

First and Only Spanish Translation of an important and influential work on oratory, originally written as a guide for effective delivery and gestures that was aimed at lawyers and ministers. The translator is more interested in the work as it relates to the theater. In his prologue (pp. 3-69), Higuera y Alfaro discusses at length the importance of gestures and diction, and the different modes of acting required by comic vs. tragic actors. He also discusses the quality of modern European poetry. Rodríguez-Moñino notes that this prologue is essential for understanding Spanish literary esthetics in the second half of the eighteenth century.

Traité de l'action de l'orateur first appeared in Paris, 1657. Its author, Michel Le Facheur, was a Protestant minister born in Geneva in 1585. Shortly after his death in 1657, this work was published by his friend Valentin Conrart (1603-1675), one of the founders of the Académie Française. The first-edition title page did not mention Le Facheur. For many years Conrart was considered the author of the Traité, which by 1700 went through 7 French editions and was translated into Latin. In English translation, it was the most influential Continental work behind the doctrines of the eighteenth-century English elocutionists, and its scope was broadened from lawyers and ministers to politicians, courtiers, and actors.

Rules for Rowdy Knights

19. [SANTIAGO, Orden de]. Regla de la Orden de la Caballeria de Santiago, con notas sobre algunos de sus capítulos, y un apéndice de varios documentos, que conducen para su inteligencia y observancia, y mayor ilustracion suya, y de las antigüedades de la Orden Madrid: En la Imprenta de Sancha, 1791. 8°, contemporary mottled sheep (very minor wear), smooth spine richly gilt with crimson leather lettering piece, short-title in gilt, marbled endleaves, text-block edges rouged. Woodcut symbol of the Order of Santiago on title page. Occasional light browning and minimal foxing. In very good to fine condition. xvi, 223 pp. $500.00

First edition of the present version of these rules, or constitution, governing the practice of the order of chivalry constituted by the Knights of Santiago. The statutes (pp. 1-46) are followed by lengthy "Notas para la mejor inteligencia de la Regla de la Orden de Santiago" (pp. 47-93), and then by an appendix with documents relating to the statues and to the Orden de Santiago (pp. 95-223). The early rules cover such expected topics as welcoming guests, prayers, meals, clothing, wives, property, and the infirmary. But the knights seem to have been an obstreperous bunch, and the last thirty of seventy-one rules deal with a startling variety of misdemeanors and more serious crimes. There are rules regarding theft (Cap. XLI), making false testimony (Cap. XLV), murdering fellow members (Cap. XLVII) or non-members (Cap. XLVIII), committing arson or sacrilege (Cap. XLIX), killing in course of defending the Order's property (Cap. L), striking a fellow member (Cap. LI), publicizing a fellow member's sins (Cap. LIII), disparaging a fellow member (Cap. LV) or insulting him (Cap. LIX) or insulting his lineage (Cap. LXI), contradicting the grand master (Cap. LXVIII), and much more.

The notes are quite detailed and scholarly, e.g., n° 33 (pp. 77-9), which lists changes made to Capitulo XXIV, on acceptable clothing. The documents in the appendix range from Pope Alexander III's confirmation of the order in 1175, translated to Spanish, to rites for accepting a man into the order, for burying members, and for celebrating a capítulo general. Biographies of all 39 of the grand masters of the Orden de Santiago from 1170 to ca. 1500 are given on pp. 119-48.

The rules were first published in Spanish by Brocar in Alcalá, ca. 1511-1515. They appeared again in Valladolid, 1527, Toledo, 1529, and Alcalá, 1547 (by Juan de Brocar). According to the Prologo, no editions were published during the seventeenth century.

The Order of Santiago was formed in the twelfth century to protect travelers on the pilgrimage route to the tomb of St. James the Greater at Santiago de Compostela, and to fight against the Moslems in the Iberian Peninsula. In 1493 King Ferdinand was elected grand master, and in 1523 the office of grand master was permanently incorporated into the crown.

Benito Monfort

"Benito Monfort is generally thought to be the most gifted of a group of printers centred [sic] in Valencia and in a wider context he is regarded by some as not much inferior to Ibarra himself." —H.G. Whitehead, "Benito Monfort, 1716-1785: a Tentative List of Holdings in the Reference Division of the British Library" in The British Library Journal, X, 1 (Spring 1984), p. 50.

Son of a weaver, Benito Monfort y Besades, a native of Valencia, learned the printing trade in the office of Antonio Bordázar. In 1757 he set up his own press as "Impressor del Seminario de la Compañía de Jesús" located "junto al Hospital de los Pobres Estudiantes" in the Calle del Temple, presently Salvá, near the University. In 1773. After an earlier unsuccessful attempt to gain the title, he was granted that of "Impresor de la Ciudad". Besides being official printer to the Jesuits, the City and University of Valencia, he also obtained appointments from the Tribunal de Montesa, the Escuelas Pias, the Bishop of Teruel, the Capitanía General, the Real Audiencia, and the Real Academia de Bellas Artes. Monfort's heirs continued to print, using the same imprint, until 1853, when the press was sold to the proprietors of the periodical El Valenciano, which continued to use his name in the imprint as "El Valenciano, antes de D. Benito Monfort" until 1859. We have added one imprint from 1828, which shows much of the same attention to fine printing as was exhibited by the founder. Ruiz Lasala lists 439 books printed by Monfort during his lifetime.

Woodcut vignette on title-page. Elegant woodcut initials and vignettes. Overall in very good condition. xii, 471 pp. ¶⁴, 2¶², A-Z⁴, 2A-2Z⁴, 3A-3N⁴ $1,200.00

First Monfort edition. Finely printed on excellent quality paper. It includes Cicero's De Officiis, De Amicitia, De Senectute, Paradoxa, and the Somnium Scipionis, each with translator's preface. On pp. 381-456, also with a translator's preface, is a translation of Xenophon's Oeconomicus, a Greek work of the fourth century B.C. that was translated to Latin by Cicero, and read widely in the Renaissance. It is one of the earliest works to deal with economics in the original sense: household management and agriculture.

Francisco de Thámara, humanist, historian, and translator, first published his translations of De Officiis, De Amicitia, and De Senectute in Seville, 1545; they were frequently reprinted.

Cicero's Paradoxa and Somnium Scipionis and Xenophon's Oeconomicus were translated by Juan Jarava.

Advice on Irrigation

22. [ALGUER, Francisco de Paula]. Plan sinóptico de las acequias [sic] del Rio Turia con varias observaciones. Dedicado á la Real Sociedad Económica de Valencia por uno de sus individuos. Valencia: Imprenta de D. Benito Monfort, 1828. 4°, early quarter calf over marbled boards (slight wear), smooth spine with crimson lettering piece, short title lettered in gilt, decorated endleaves. Title-page lightly spotted, otherwise clean and crisp. In very good condition. (10 ll.), very large folding table.

$650.00

FIRST and ONLY EDITION. The source of the Rio Turia is in the Montes Universales (province of Teruel). Until it reaches the city of Teruel it is called the Rio Guadalaviar; after that, as the Rio Turia, it flows southeast to the Mediterranean Sea at Valencia. It has always been an important source of irrigation. This volume lists thirty-five irrigation projects near Valencia that use river water, giving the names of farms, mills, and fábricas that use the water. It was the intention of the author, a member of the Real Sociedad Económica de Valencia, to make this information available so that similar irrigation projects could be established elsewhere.
